EAST GRAMPIANS HEALTH SERVICE

CE Report

I thank the community for its tremendous generosity in supporting East Grampians Health Service. This is essentially the catchment of the local government area of Ararat Rural City, but it is increasingly covering the local government areas of Northern Grampians and Pyrenees.

Our staff are generous with their time and effort, going above and beyond in the workplace. They also volunteer for community events that support East Grampians Health Service, complementing a large community of volunteers and supporters.

This was evident on April 6 when the Murray to Moyne cycle relay came into Port Fairy, and the rescheduled Victoria Police Blue Ribbon Ararat Branch Ride to Remember was held on the same day.

The Murray to Moyne involved approximately 20 volunteers, including cycling or as a support crew, who supported each other to ensure the EGHS cyclists successfully set off from beside the Murray River at Echuca and crossed the Moyne River at Port Fairy. The group has consistently raised much-needed funds for the health service.

It was a proud moment to see over 500 motorcyclists in Ararat riding across the Grampians region, with the funds generated going to EGHS. I would estimate that nearly 100 volunteers were involved, led skilfully by Blue Ribbon President Di Radford and her hardworking Blue Ribbon team, many of them EGHS staff members.

The generosity of the community in giving their time and making generous donations to support these and many other events is truly heartening and greatly appreciated by the board, staff, visiting medical officers, and volunteers. I often reflect that if the community's trust in the health service is lost, these events and volunteering would be significantly reduced.

The board, staff, visiting medical officers, and volunteers are responsible for ensuring that we continue to provide high-quality care to the community that meets its needs and expectations. Then, trust is maintained and built upon, and the community will continue to be proud of the local health service and will contribute their time and money to support it.

Researchers often mention a high level of liveability as a reason for living in specific locations. We know that we need to continue improving the quality of our health services, as health services are a strong indicator of liveability. This is particularly important for the community and us recruiting new staff.

I see the existing local businesses continuing to grow and develop to enhance and expand their offerings to the community. This, coupled with new businesses opening and expanding their offerings, improves Ararat's liveability. I thank them for their efforts.

JODIE HOLWELL
COMMUNITY LIAISON

Premier of Victoria Jacinta Allan and Member for Ripon Martha Haylett officially opened the Ararat Women's Sexual and Reproductive Health Hub.

The new Hub will make it easier for women and girls in Ararat to access sexual and reproductive health care.

Operated by East Grampians Health Service within the EGHS Community Health Centre, the hub offers free or low-cost confidential care with no referral required – including for contraception, medical abortion, referral for surgical abortion, and the testing, diagnosis and treatment of STIs.

It will also help avoid long-term health issues through treatments such as physiotherapy and education for pelvic floor issues, reducing the likelihood of incontinence and the need for ongoing care and possible hospitalisation.

Ms Allan met with EGHS Director of Community Services Sarah Woodburn and the EGHS GP Obstetricians Dr Winnie Yum and Dr Megan Helper, as well as staff of the new clinic, during her visit to Ararat.

"These hubs in Ararat and Horsham are closing service gaps in regional Victoria – ensuring more women can access the care they need, close to home," Ms Allan said.

Director of Community Services Sarah Woodburn said East Grampians Health Service is excited to offer access to sexual and reproductive health care to women and girls from the Ararat region, close to home without the need to travel and without the need for a referral.

"We were pleased Premier Jacinta Allan was able to officially open the Ararat Women's Sexual and Reproductive Health Hub, view the facilities and meet our GP Obstetricians and staff."

East Grampians Health Service's Cranks and Defibrillators have raised $14,760 towards the purchase of a portable ultrasound machine for the new Women's Sexual and Reproductive Health Hub at the EGHS Community Health Centre.

The team wrapped up its fund raising recently, after a successful 525-kilometre relay from Echuca to Port Fairy in April.

The team of 12 riders, and support crew of four bus drivers, were thrilled to exceed their goal of $10,000 and are excited to see the equipment when it arrives at the new Health Hub.

"Congratulations to our team of riders and support crew on a successful and by all accounts enjoyable ride, as well as on their fundraising efforts, which included the Ararat Market, Trivia Night, Bowls Night, raffles and team sponsorship," EGHS chief executive Nick Bush said.

"You are wonderful ambassadors for East Grampians Health Service and continue the long tradition of more than 25 years of our health service participating in this popular annual event, raising in excess of $250,000 in that time."

Mr Bush also thanked the many businesses, organisations and individuals who provided sponsorship and donations to the team.

"We are very grateful for the generosity of our community, who have provided valuable funds towards the new equipment for the Health Hub, as well as in kind donations that enable our team to run successful fundraisers," he said.

"Thank you to everyone who has contributed towards this project, your support of the health service does not go unnoticed."

The theme for April at the Patricia Hinchey Centre was "Into the Wild". Consumers engaged in all manner of wild activities, including "A Safari from your Seat" where consumers were introduced to the wildlife of the African continent followed up with a dose of Safari Bingo! Wild West Friday was celebrated with a Texas Chili Spaghetti and some folks got themselves in some Wild Wanted Mugshots. Some consumers were able to get out to the Hall Gap Zoo for an "Into the Wild" excursion. Everyone had a great time.

To top off a wild time it was also Easter, so a selection of wild easter bunnies ensured consumers got their choccy egg fix.

All in all it was a successful April at the PHC. Thanks to all the volunteers and staff for their efforts.

INTERNATIONAL MIDWIVES DAY

CAROL LEO
ASSOCIATE NURSE UNIT MANAGER

Monday the 5th of May marked the celebration of International Midwives Day.

Midwives play an indispensable role in the health and well being of women and families around the world.

On International Midwives Day, we honour the unwavering dedication, expertise and compassionate care they provide.

Midwifery is not just a profession; it is a calling grounded in the profound understanding of the sacred journey of childbirth.

Throughout history, midwives have been the guardians of this journey, offering support, education and guidance to expectant mothers and their families. They are the steady hand and caring hearts that help bring new life into this world, creating a safe and empowering experience during one of life's most transformative moments.

Midwifery work goes beyond the delivery room; it encompasses antenatal care and postnatal support to enhance the emotional well being of mothers and families, which in turn fosters healthier communities.

To all midwives present in our community, nation and across the globe; let us commit to supporting and uplifting each other, sharing knowledge and experience and building a future where every birth is respectful, safe and celebrated.

East Grampians Health Service have been posting introduction snippets of midwives via the Facebook page in the lead up to International Midwives Day. We thought this would be a wonderful way to introduce our midwifery team to Ararat and surrounding communities. An invitation was sent out to women who have previously birthed at EGHS and those currently involved in antenatal care program, to join our midwives at a morning tea event organised at Pyrenees House on the 5th of May.

The event went well and gave women a chance to catch up with midwives. The room was filled with chatter, laughs and a happy symphony of giggles from children. Thankyou to Sarah and Lisa for all their preparation to make the day a success

MENTAL HEALTH FIRST AID

Most people are familiar with the idea of physical first aid courses that teach the skills and knowledge required to recognise and respond to life-threatening emergencies and provide a first aid response across a range of different situations. Mental Health First Aid (MHFA) training adopts a similar approach.

Using a practical, skills-based action plan, participants learn the skills to recognise and respond to someone experiencing a mental health problem or mental health crisis, until professional help is received or the crisis resolves.

Since 2023, EGHS has provided all staff the opportunity to attend the 2-day MHFA workshop, delivered on-site by MHFA Instructors and EGHS staff Russell Purdie and Suzie Christie. Over the last 2 years, 110 EGHS employees have become MHFAiders through our program and we will continue to offer more training days throughout this year. Participants need to attend both sessions that are generally a week apart and run from 08:30am to 3:00pm.

We have also had the opportunity to provide this training to the team at Lake Bolac Bush Nursing and will head to Elmhurst Bush Nursing Centre later in the year.

With current statistics stating that 1 in 5 Australians suffered from a mental illness in the last 12 months and 2 in 5 Australians will be diagnosed with a mental illness in their lifetime, equipping yourself with the right skills and knowledge will ensure you can provide support to colleagues, friends and family if required.

Our next 2-day workshop is scheduled for 19th and 26th June for EGHS staff. If you would like to attend please email education@eghs.net.au to register your interest, enrol or find out other dates scheduled for the year.

PARKLAND PURSUITS

MICHELLE MASLEN, PAM WHEELER AND JOSIE HICKEY
LIFESTYLE COORDINATORS

Well, what a hot Autumn and the leaves are just turning. We have had some excellent armchair travel from Pam to Norfolk Island, Josie will take the men fishing and Michelle will take residents on an outing to Hamilton to 'Campes Motor Museum'.

Also, the Willaura Kindergarten will visit again with seven children. They are very busy little people. The Willaura Primary School will visit, and they will do a craft for Mother's Day. Pam will be making Mother's Day cards for May with the Willaura Primary School.

We have a pampering day and foot care with Michelle, and there will also be art therapy and scrapbooking. Josie has a great team for bob bowls now and they are very competitive.

The Auxiliary has purchased three outdoor settings for Willaura and they look so great. Families and residents love to sit in them. We have some new plants that will be spread around the rotunda area and the BBQ area.

The weather has been fairly mild so we have had a BBQ. It's always a delicious smell when the onions are cooking on the BBQ and the sausages are sizzling.

Residents will get a chance to go to the movies in Ararat and have several drives to Dunkeld, Woorndoo and Beaufort to have afternoon tea.

PERFECT PUMPKINS – WHAT IS RANDLE’S SECRET?

RUTH KALISZEWSKI
EGHS CONSUMER PARTNER

Randle has been an avid gardener for over 60 years making, propagating and tending to many vegetable and flower beds over the years. Since moving to Garden View Court, he has become their resident gardener. He has delighted in getting garden and vegetable beds up and running, establishing a variety of seasonal vegetables and plants throughout the year and sharing produce and his knowledge with others.

Randle likes to be able to reduce waste, improving soil health by putting leaf and cardboard recyclable material back into the garden beds, conserving resources by having a good watering system and regularly looking for garden worms to know they're working hard at helping the soil breakdown compost matter giving a better soil health and productivity of produce. Bees are also out doing their work, and they are another good indicator of a healthy garden as they visit each flowering plant often helping propagate other plants along their journey.

Composting the garden beds helps retain water in the soil and the raised garden beds reduce water usage and erosion. Our EGHS gardening and maintenance team supports Randle with his endeavours sourcing mulch, building up the soil property to be a healthier garden bed.

Chemicals are non-existent in his garden beds to ensure environmental safety for our visiting wildlife (insects and birds), the resident cat Aerial and those who are eating the produce. Randle saves as much of his good vegetable crop seeds to assist in the next season's planting – ensuring good plant genetics and cost saving too. Many of the tomatoes are self sown.

Winter and summer plantings have successfully grown including melon varieties, broad beans, peas, legumes, herbs – currently parsley and dill, shallots and onions and of course pumpkins. Others include tomato, cucumber, silver beet and beetroot.

Randle regularly enters the Moyston Market Pumpkin Competition and came in 3rd place this year with his pumpkins in excess of 40 kg. He also made homemade relish from the last of this season's tomatoes that was shared amongst many of our other Garden View Court residents.

NATIONAL PALLIATIVE CARE WEEK 2025

JESSICA SERES
REGISTERED NURSE

What's your plan?

Every day in Australia, 400 people of all ages die of a terminal illness. Every one of them could benefit from palliative care – care that is their human right, care that can enrich their final days, and care that too many people still miss out on.

National Palliative Care Week (NPCW) opens conversations, raises awareness, and advocates for better access to and acceptance of palliative care.

In 2025 – National Palliative Care Week will run from Sunday, 11 May until Saturday, 17 May.

This year – NPCW celebrates 30 years by asking a simple yet powerful question: “What’s your plan?” It’s a direct approach to Australians and their loved ones to talk about what matters most at the end of life and to make a plan that empowers and respects their choices during the last years, months, and days of life.

Why does this conversation matter even more now?

Death still remains a difficult subject for people to talk about, that’s natural and human. Death is also often considered to be a taboo. The reluctance, and lack of awareness and engagement contributes to a widespread misunderstanding of what palliative care is and what it can offer.

NPCW 2025 is about changing that. It provides an opportunity to start those conversations, break down taboos, dispel myths, and empower the life and choices that need to be considered with terminal illness and ageing.

Central Grampians Palliative Care, located within East Grampians Health Service-Ararat, is made up of dedicated and passionate Registered Nurses with a desire to support and educate members within the community to make informed decisions around their care needs and wishes.

This team provide community-based care to individuals and their families within the Ararat Rural City, Northern Grampians Shire as well as the Pyrenees Shire.

Palliative Care supports people with a life limiting illness to live as well as they can whilst managing symptoms to ensure their quality of life is maintained.

National Palliative Care Week campaigns aim to raise awareness about palliative care and its benefits, and advocate to ensure quality palliative care is available for all, when and where they need it.

CHALLENGES FOR REMOTE PATIENT MONITORING PROGRAMS IN RURAL AND REGIONAL AREAS

JACLYN BISHOP

DIRECTOR OF DEVELOPMENT AND IMPROVEMENT

The results of a research project in which East Grampians Health Service (EGHS) participated have recently been published in BMC Health Services Research. Jaclyn Bishop (EGHS Director, Development and Improvement) co-authored the article.

In this research, 48 staff at different rural health services in Western Victoria were asked about their experiences with using technology to collect health data from people with health conditions living in the community (e.g. blood pressure readings), known as remote patient monitoring. The aim of remote patient monitoring is to provide people with better access to clinical care without having to travel to receive it.

Effective remote patient monitoring in rural areas was viewed by the participating health service staff as crucial for bridging the healthcare divide with city people. However, the research found several challenges to the use of technology in the rural setting. This included limited technology knowledge and language barriers among users in rural communities. There were also differences in access to this technology and the required technical support between health services. Disjointed approaches to implementing this type of technology, even within the same organisation, was raised as a significant issue. Those involved wanted the data obtained through remote patient monitoring to be visible within their existing clinical systems so that it can be used for the person's care if they do come into hospital. More broadly, the funding for such technology was considered too short to allow for evaluation of the benefits in the rural setting.

The article authors suggested that there was an urgent need to invest in technology in the rural setting and that this funding should be allocated region wide. They also thought it was important to tailor patient monitoring programs to the unique needs of each community.

To ensure that the immunisation successes of the past 50 years are built on in the coming decades, this year's theme, 'Immunisation for all is humanly possible', looked at the importance of ensuring more people, especially children, are vaccinated.

OCCUPATIONAL HEALTH, SAFETY AND WELLBEING NEWS

HELEN MCPHERSON
70 LOWE STREET

Continuing with the regular column from the Occupational Health, Safety and Wellbeing (OHS&W) Committee, where committee representatives will share positive news stories on OHS&W matters in their area that have been resolved through innovative thinking.

70 Lowe Street

The current redevelopment project at 70 Lowe Street will eventually provide residents a single room with their own bathroom. This project will run over a significant period of time as funding becomes available.

Work has commenced in Bird Ave with the shared bathroom between rooms four and five and a new bathroom being built for room five. This space is being used as a template for the whole project with the purpose of ironing out any issues as they arise prior to the project moving forward into other rooms.

An issue arose following the blocking off of a doorway into room five, when a staff member identified that it was difficult to place a resident on the toilet when using lifting equipment, with the potential to cause injury to staff and to cause damage to the environment.

While investigating this issue, it was also identified that this particular bathroom design would be a concern for other rooms within the facility.

Stuart Kerr, Leeanne Atkinson and Helen McPherson investigated and it was identified that there was not enough space to turn the lifting equipment to place the resident on the toilet without causing strain to staff.

Many alternative options were looked at, and after many discussions within the facility and several meetings it was decided that the best option would be to un-block the doorway of the bathroom and build the wall out at a 90-degree angle. The overhead tracking needed to be removed, and installed at a different angle, which will require modification to the internal roof structure to support the tracking.

The modification will allow for adequate circulation space within the bathroom for staff to utilise equipment safely.
